Who are the Amish?

The Amish adhere to a Christian faith and belief system that values community, unity, family, faith, and hard work. The Amish in our area are Old Order, a very conservative and traditional community living without electricity, phones, cars and other modern conveniences.

Most commonly recognized by their plain dress, horse and buggy transportation, and old fashioned farming practices, the Amish live an intentional lifestyle that separates them from the modern world and is centered around their families and community. They make a living from farming and handcrafting products for sale.

The Amish View of Community:

- Everyone in the community is accountable to God.
- The virtue of humility is shown through respect for God and others.
- All persons are worthy of dignity and respect.
- Communities are made stronger when individuals do not use personal desire as their supreme criteria for making decisions.

- Traditions are more important than progress.
- Accumulated wisdom is better than an individual's ideas.
- Authority in all of its various forms is to be obeyed. Ministers submit to bishops, members to leaders, wives to husbands, children to parents, students to teachers, younger to elder, and so on.

Leadership:

Amish church leadership includes three positions: Bishop, Minister, and Deacon. These leaders serve at the District Level, which is where the ultimate authority lies within the Amish Faith. They work individually and together to guide the actions of their District. The Bishop is the Primary Spiritual Leader, the Minister is under the Bishop, and the Deacon performs duties.

What Language do the Amish Speak?

A common misconception about Pennsylvania Dutch is that it is a variant of the Dutch Language. This is not true. The German is Deutsch, which sounds a lot like Dutch, and one theory holds that over the years, the term for Pennsylvania German, or Pennsylvania Deutsch began to be pronounced Pennsylvania Dutch.

Schooling:

Amish children attend school in a one room school house. They are large enough for 25-30 children of various grade levels. They start school at 6 years-old in the 1st grade and go until 8th grade.

What do the Amish Make and Sell?

They produce a variety of goods including quilts, rugs, baked goods, candy, furniture, toys, baskets, eggs, homegrown fruits & vegetables, jams, woodworking, leather, lumber, iron works and more.

Where are the Amish Shops?

The Amish sell their products from their homes—the Amish Trail map will help you locate their businesses. Look for a sign in their front yard and an open sign to direct you. You will not find any large Amish stores or commercialized Amish shopping areas or attractions. Their shops can be in their homes, attached to their homes, or in a separate building next to their homes. Rural, small town, personal and friendly is what characterizes this area.

An authentic Amish experience! What else do I need to know?

- Amish do not accept credit cards.
- Slow down and drive with caution around Amish horse and buggies.
- Do not take photos of the Amish. It is against their beliefs. Photos of buildings and scenery are allowed.
- Respect their privacy and personal property.

What else is in the area?

Besides the Amish shops there are many other local shops and businesses. Be sure to check out the Amish Trail map & visitor's guide for more information on all the great shops, restaurants, accommodations, and attractions that are part of NY's Amish Trail.

A trip into Amish Country is like a step back in time to a place where the unhurried clip-clop of horsedrawn buggies on back country roads is a common sight and sound, where handmade quilts hang drying in warm summer breezes and children walk to the little one-room schoolhouse down the road.

It's a place where you can go to get away from it all and take a break from the fast-paced world you live in. Here things move slower and life is simpler.

The Amish are a community dedicated to a way of life that separates them from the world and emphasizes humility, faith, family, honesty and hard work.

New York's Amish Geo Trail

The New York's Amish Geo Trail (NYAGT) was developed to encourage visiting cachers and residents to explore areas of western Cattaraugus County that are new to them as they travel the highways and byways of the Enchanted Mountains.

Currently there are 2 New York's Amish Geo Trails, each with its own trackable Geo Coin! For each Trail there were 12 different caches hidden along NY's Amish Trail for you to discover! You may receive a magnetic geo-button for each cache you locate. If you locate 10 of the 12 caches, you will receive a NY Amish Geo Trail Coin.
